Arch Rehab Project Kicks Off at Electra Theatre

Work on the Proscenium Arch Restoration project at Electra's historic Grand Theatre started last week, according to theatre board members.

The project will restore the badly water-damaged arch and surrounding wall surfaces and repair arch lighting and footlights. Work should be completed in time for Electra's 2016 Homecoming activities in September. Glenda Ramsey, AIA, of Harper Perkins Architects is project architect and Calvin Davis of Marathon Building Company is general contractor.

The arch repair project has been the focus of fundraising efforts in recent years, and is made possible by financial support from The Priddy Foundation, the Bryant Edwards Foundation, the Fain Foundation, Business Development Corporation of Electra, in-kind professional services, and many donors and local volunteers.
